

To assist public bodies in implementing integrity promotion programmes, the ICAC provides various professional and free services including:

Integrity Training Service

The Community Relations Department of the ICAC provides integrity training services to all personnel of public bodies, ranging from new recruits, frontline staff, managers to members of committees or boards. The training covering anti-corruption law, handling conflict of interest and managing staff integrity, help public servants understand the corruption risks in their daily work to avoid breaching the law inadvertently, and thus provide public services with high level of integrity.

Corruption Prevention Consultancy Service

To minimise opportunities for corruption in public bodies, the Corruption Prevention Department of the ICAC provides expert advices to public bodies on setting up or strengthening their system of internal control and assists them in formulating or reviewing their corporate code of conduct.

Report Corruption and Enquiry Service

The ICAC provides corruption reporting and enquiry services. If you wish to report corruption, please visit ICAC Report Centre or Regional Offices, or call the ICAC 24-hour hotline 25 266 366. You may also make a report by mailing to the G.P.O. Box 1000, Hong Kong. All reports and enquiries are treated in strict confidence.
